

Michael Bailey, Daniel Hopkins, and Todd Rogers

November 7th, 2016

Data set for “Unresponsive and Unpersuaded: The Unintended Consequences of Voter Persuasion Efforts.” Political Behavior, 38(3):713-746

Wi-replicationcode-11072016.R – This code replicates the full results presented in the article. Note that it includes proprietary variables, whereas the publicly released data set has removed such variables.

Wi-08-public-data.Rdata – This file is an .Rdata data frame object with 56,000 rows corresponding to registered voters and 21 columns providing different information.

Survey – a binary indicator for respondents who completed the survey svy_result – a factor variable indicating the outcome of the phone survey obama – an indicator variable, 1 for respondents who supported Barack Obama canvass – an indicator variable, 1 for respondents randomly assigned to be canvassed phonecall – an indicator variable, 1 for respondents randomly assigned to be called mail – an indicator variable, 1 for respondents randomly assigned to be mailed black – an indicator variable, 1 for respondents modeled to be African American hispanic -- an indicator variable, 1 for respondents modeled to be Hispanic turnout.score.c – a continuous non-negative integer indicating the number of elections of the prior 9 in which the respondent voted male – an indicator for male respondents protestant – an indicator for protestant respondents catholic – an indicator for catholic respondents q_age – the respondent’s age in years vh_02g – an indicator variable for respondents who voted in the 2002 general election vh_04p – an indicator variable for respondents who voted in the 2004 primary election q_phonematchscore – an estimate of the quality of the phone match